SPORTS

FOOTBALL

Despite the season win and loss record, the Coon Rapids Cardinal football squad had a successful season. In their eight Suburban Conference games they played well, considering the squad members were only sophomores and juniors, in a primary senior league. These young men from Coon Rapids were very respectable in their efforts as a football team.

Mr. Arndt, the head coach, feels the squad had a lot of grit and that this is the major ingredient of a good football player. He further states we need polish and hard work to become a contender in the tough Suburban Conference. The squad of thirty lettermen and some good potential from the "B" squad should make a good showing in the 1965 season. The challenge of becoming a hard-nosed football team is up to the boys and if they are willing to sacrifice for the team and think of the squad first they will be heard from.

The team used a wing-T offense and various types of defenses. The most successful game of the season was the win over Kellogg by a score of 25 to 0.

Yeh! Rah! Rah! Cardinals.

As the football team spent many hours in practice new cheers and chants to enable them to serve their school to the best of their ability.

Cheerleading, besides requiring hard work, also demands sacrifices. In cheerleading, a girl must give her all at every game, whether the team wins or loses. For it is her responsibility to use cheers and chants to generate true school spirit.

It is the duty of a cheerleader to do her best in her cheering and in her school work not sacrificing one for the other. Being in the public eye at games and school functions, the cheerleader's responsibility is to be on her toes at all times, because while wearing her red and white uniform she represents Coon Rapids Senior High School. Before she can have control of the crowd she must win the respect of them.

Although cheerleading requires much time and responsibility the satisfaction gained through the experience makes it an honor never to be forgotten. The cheerleaders were under the leadership and coaching of their advisor, Miss Kelly.

With 7 lettermen to back them up, the Coon Rapids Cardinal Harriers eagerly prepared for another season, with coach Marlow Strand right behind them.

It was a rough season for the Cardinals but they did well in a post victory over Sibley with a perfect score of 15-50.

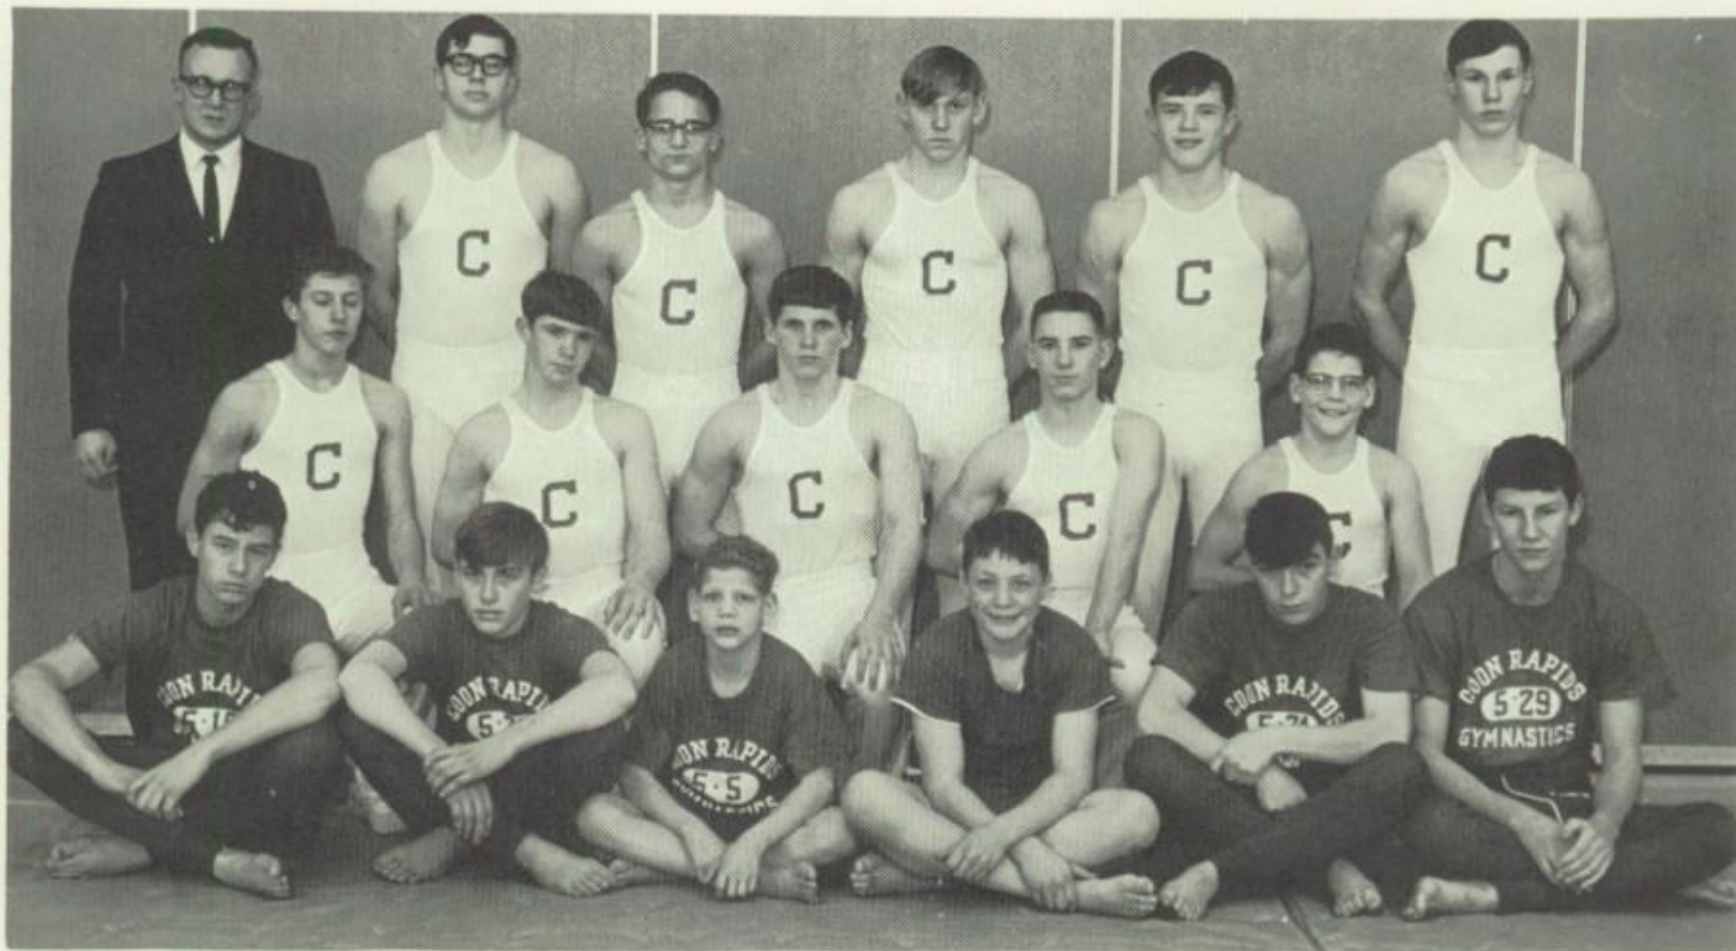

Highlights of meets this year were--

1. Placing 6th out of twenty-four schools running "Class B" at the Swain invitational in Duluth.
2. Placing third in the Dist. #16 meet and qualifying for the region meet.
3. Running in the Region #4 meet as a team.

Heading Coach Marlow Strand's team this year were lettermen Gary Bomstead, Chris Colby, James Fuller, Tom Heimer, Brad Heth, Al Thompson and Pat Walker. Through the hard work of our Cardinal Harriers we have a Cross Country team of which we can be proud.

GO CARDINALS GO!

There were very few boys that participated in this sport last year so they played B-squad. Glen Vasecka and Jim Albrecht were the two main point getters in class B. Both gymnast worked five out of the six pieces tumbling, trampoline, horizontal bar, parallel bars, rings. In three meets Vasecka took first place on all five events, making him the team top point getter.

Captain Dave Mellum was our main participant in class A. This was a difficult assignment, but Dave scored well in his three best events, trampoline, horizontal bar, parallel bars.

GYMNASTICS

Our basketball team did an excellent job in their first season of A-squad competition in the tough Suburban Conference. They had a record of three wins and nine losses in conference play with two games remaining.

The boys devoted a lot of time and effort to this sport. They deserve our fullest appreciation.

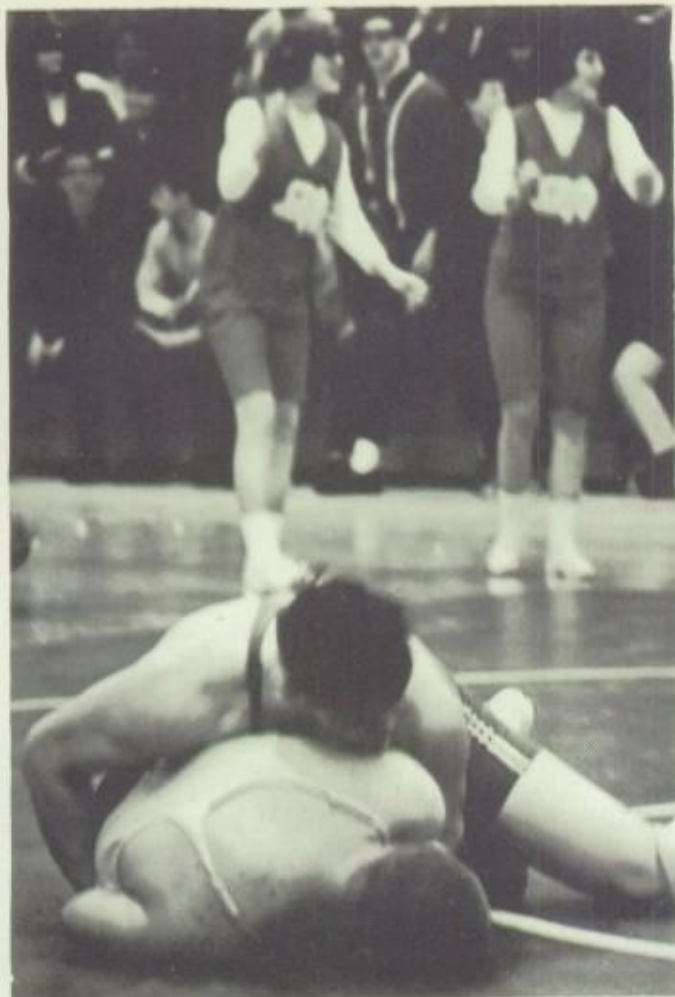

WRESTLING

L-R: J. Timm, K. Erickson, T. Heimer, D. Stahl, M. Delaney, T. Stenson, D. Porter, D. Hodson, M. Super, B. Parenteau, R. Burns, R. Puls. Manager: Mr. Board. A-Squad

Wrestling is a competitive sport in which each boy tries his best to pin his "man."

This sport is dependent upon condition, speed, strength, science. In order to be a wrestler of the first rank, one must have to the fullest degree of strength of a football player, the speed of the track athlete, the agility of a tumbler, the coordination of a contortionist and the bodily development and physique of a swimmer.

Dale Stahl and Tom Heimer are the captains of our wrestling team. Our boys came in fourth in the Surburban Conference and second in the Richfield Invitational.

The philosophy of a wrestler is always do better than is expected of you. If you are selected for the team it is because you are "TOPS" in your weight class. The team, the school, and your friends expect you to do your best. Never be a quitter, live up to the expectations of those who have confidence in you.

We want a pin! Hey! Hey! Hey!

Our wrestling cheerleaders have cheered our team on to many a victory. Each of the girls has her own special reason for being a cheerleader, but one for sure is to be able to help our team win. We all appreciate what our cheerleaders have done, so let's all give a cheer for the cheerleaders!

L-R: M. Stevens, T. Schack, Scramstead, Hedin, Johnson, Norris, Clyne, True, Lobeck, Presley, Mr. Kimball. B-Squad.

Another one of the fine sports this year was Hockey. This season's record was not the best we've ever seen, but it's a good start for a two-year team high school. The boys worked hard and practiced long under the capable leadership of Mr. Hanson. The boys deserve a lot of praise for their hard work and ability to work hard.

Enduring the cold air while cheering on the team this year were Vicki Julson and Donna Smith. Lets give "Them" a cheer for their loyal support which they showed for their team throughout the season. Diane Wilson and Kari Kullen also did a great job in cheering for the B-squad Hockey team.

ACTIVITIES

"AUTUMN'S LAST LEAF"

"Autumn's Last Leaf", our first Homecoming Dance, was held on October tenth after the game. The unfortunate loss of our Homecoming game did not dampen the spirits of everyone. Over four hundred students attended the dance which was enjoyed by all.

Two bands, the Kator Men and the Ivymen, were on hand to contribute the music.

The coronation of our Homecoming queen, JoAnne Knutson, and her sophomore attendants was the highlight of the evening; She was escorted by Doug Hodson, co-captain of the football team. Her attendants, Donna Smith and Linda Szperski were escorted by Bruce Isenor and Marty Dunn.

This was a dance to be enjoyed by all who attended and a highlight in our 1964-65 school year.

SOPHOMORE PLAY

On Saturday the 21st of November, the Sophomore class play was given entitled, "The Doctor In Spite of Himself." This play was the first production of the year and it was a great success.

IN HONOR OF SPORTS...

The annual Father and Son Sports Banquet was held on November fifth, at the Coon Rapids Senior High School. The speakers were: Ken Smith, representative of the city of Coon Rapids; James Rainbow of the Junior High School; and Superintendent Erling O. Johnson on behalf of the Board of Education and Anoka Hennepin School District No. 11.

Athletic Director, John Campbell outlined the district's Program and the progress of our new athletic field.

The guest speaker was Mr. Harvey Ring, a quarterback on the Gopher team.

Jim Hippie and Walt Prozinski were elected the new co-captains of the 1965 season.

Jim Hippie was selected for the "All Suburban Eleven" and Walt Prozinski received an honorable mention.

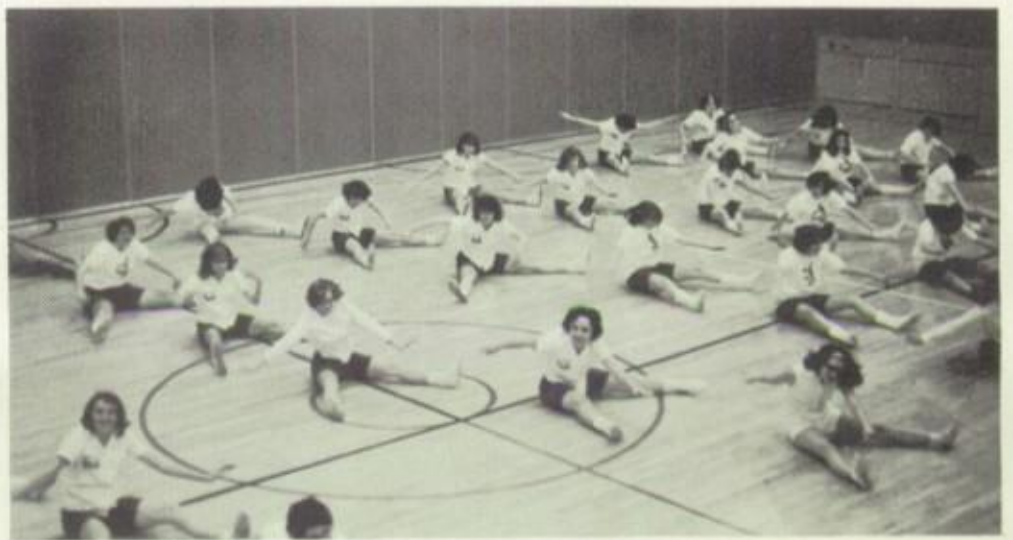

Our newly organized Student Council is a member of the Minnesota Student Council Association. Since October they have had a meeting every two weeks with some committee meetings in between.

Their main job now is to write the constitution for the council, but they have also accomplished many other things. Among these, one of the most important, is the establishment of the Honor Club.

The Honor Club is made up of students who teachers believe that they know how to behave properly. The students of this club will have their own room to work in.

The Student Council has also done much work on the dress code. At this time, there is also a talent show in progress. They also plan to have an orientation group. The purpose of this is to have someone to show new students around the school. The council has many committees, some of these are: Constitution-Marty Dunn, Orientation-Sharon Brown, Morale Committee-Bruce Isenor, Fund Raising Committee-Bruce Isenor, Dance Committee-Vicki Julson and Linda DesCombaz, Special Events-Sue Wrona and Tables Committee-Mark Rier.

The Girls Athletic Association of our school is now in it's second year of activity. The club meets every other Tuesday afternoon to do exercises and to play games such as volleyball and basketball.

The girls have purchased sweatshirts with the insignia "CR" so now our G.A.A. has a distinctive uniform.

G.A.A. is a continuation of what is done in gym class but it has a little more activity because all the girls that come are interested in working hard.

The advisor is Miss Kelly, who is also the girl's gym teacher and advisor to the cheerleaders.

MORALE CLUB

Three club members ponder the layout of the song. They are: Connie LaBrosse, Tom Teale and Linda DesCombaz.

One of the more active clubs in our school this year is the Morale Club. This club was formed by the Student Council to boost school spirit.

This club has made a large copy of our school song to put in the gym during the athletic events. Bruce Isenor is the chairman of the club.

The members are: Tom Teale, Linda DesCombaz, Connie LaBrosse, Bruce Isenor, Mike Demmer, Jim Neutz, Andee Waldahl, Sheila Tereau and Linda Brotmarkle.

Our school plays the national Anthem at a basketball game.

The busy orchestra practicing for a concert.

Our school is especially proud of its music department. They have put in many hard hours of practicing and their playing certainly shows it.

The band plays at all of our home basketball games and are really enjoyed by all.

The band is now trying to raise money for new band uniforms. They will have a winter concert on February 20 to try to raise money for them.

The chorus has been very busy. They sang Christmas carols at the Coon Rapids Bank during Christmas vacation.

The school is very proud of its music department and wishes to thank them for the hard work they have done.

L-R, FIRST ROW: Mr. Mueller, N. Johnson, M. Andrews, S. Paulson, L. Hunter. SECOND ROW: B. Haron, K. Asp, B. Albrecht, S. Asp. THIRD ROW: R. Thompson, R. Case, W. Zeto, P. Sullivan, K. Stoner, J. Watson, N. Totten.

This year CARDINAL HI-LIGHTS has become "that which in Coon Rapids everyone reads." The 1964-1965 paper was of much better caliber than last year's "pamphlet." Among the many noticable changes were; pictures, a more complete sports coverage, and the introduction of "Letters to the Editor." Of particular interest were the "Guess Who" pictures. Through the efforts of its fine staff, editors and advisor ten complete Issues went to press.

HI-LIGHT GOALS FOR 64-65

TO PRESENT an interesting and complete picture of C.R.S.H. to the community.
 TO REPORT the news as it happened.
 TO REPRESENT the facts as completely and truthfully as possible.
 TO INFORM the students, faculty and parents of all school events.
 TO HELP parents and students gain a better understanding of school policy and courses.
 TO LEAD in expressing the views and attitudes of the student body.

M. Andrews, L. Hunter, S. Paulson, Mr. Mueller, N. Totten.

SKI CLUB

Our ski club has been one of the most active clubs in the school. At their first meeting they chose officers, they are: President-Gary Bomstead, Treasurer-Fred Schmell, Secretary-Kathy Deetz, and Correspondent-Marge Andrews.

During Christmas vacation they took a trip to Trolhagen and 30 of the 70 members were present. They enjoyed this trip so much that they decided to go to Val Croix the next week. About 25 students went on this trip and it was also very successful.

The ski club recently held a dance after a basketball game. Over 250 people were present and they were entertained by the Ivymen.

The ski club is now planning another trip for Valentines Day. This time it will be to Hard Scrable and so far about 25 persons are going.

The Youth For Christ Club meets every week. Their programs include movies, guest speakers, and panel discussions of current problems.

The club also attends many rallies and other meetings that are of interest to the club members.

A newsletter is published by the club each week to keep the members informed on current happenings.

Social gatherings are also included on the long list of club activities. For example, a skating party was held during Christmas vacation.

Mr. Legrid is the club's advisor.

LONELINESS

by Linda Branger

Loneliness is parting on a cold winters day, when the wind makes your eyes water and you don't know quite what to say. You try to think of something witty or sly, but all you can do is sigh a good-bye.
 Loneliness is standing there after he goes, while the cold haunting wind chills you to your toes.

There was a time when we were one for all the world to see.
 Our friends had numbers, one, two, three
 Our foes were numbered six,
 And in this far off time and place
 Our hearts were fixed complete.
 But many years since then have passed
 And you as I have changed.
 We are of the world now
 And all its laws hold true
 We shall ne'er be one again
 For one and one make two

DIARY OF A KILLER

by MIKE BENNETT

Two weeks have passed since I murdered Mr. Loomis. Telling you how I did it is unnecessary. I feel no remorse in my soul, for I hated Mr. Loomis. Let me explain why.

Ever since I can remember, I have known Mr. Loomis. He was a tall man, probably in his middle forties, who usually smoked a smelly cigar. Although I knew little of his occupation, it seemed to me that Mr. Loomis traveled very frequently. Whatever he did, I always saw him wearing a blue suit. I thought to myself that he must be an important business man. His vastly superior status quo compared to my low standing in the world made me raving mad! The way in which he walked made me think he was in love with himself. All these things were factors in my killing of Mr. Loomis.

Mr. Loomis never talked to me, except if I was in his way. I guess that was his business like attitude.

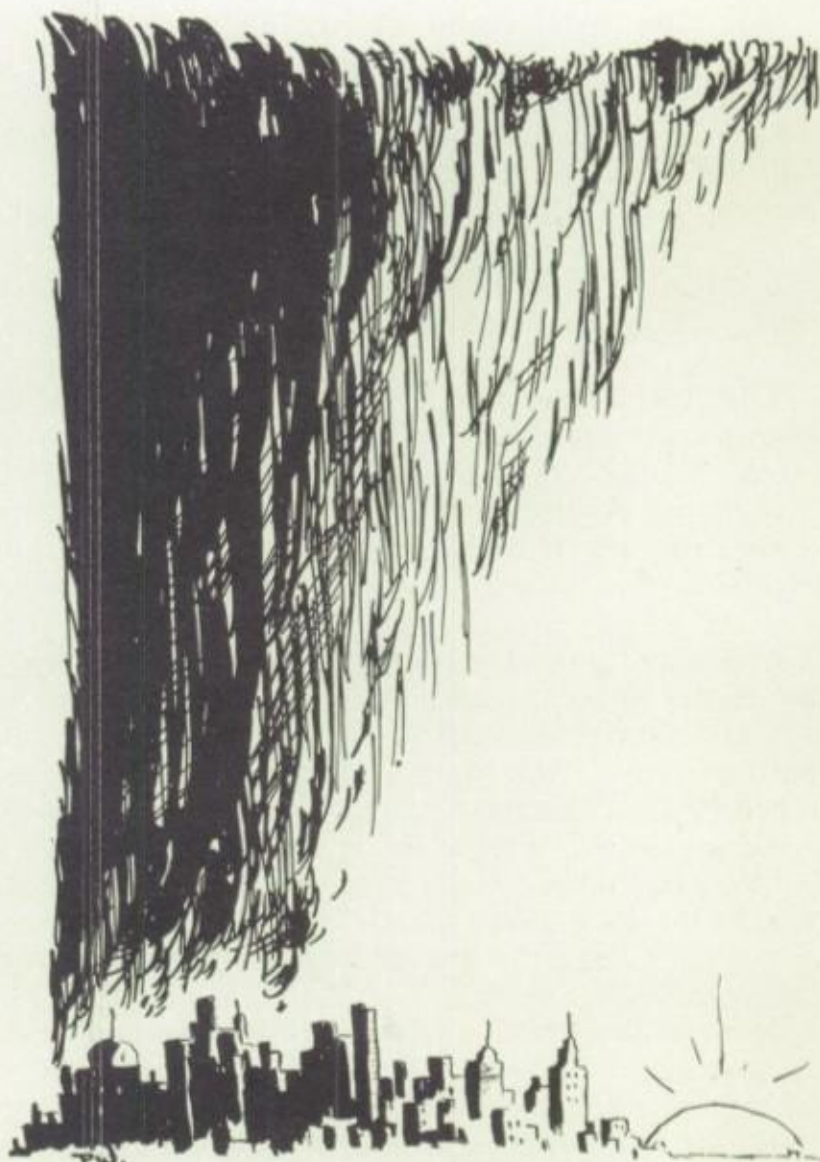

Mr. Loomis seemed gentle enough, but the next day proved different. Mrs. Loomis' appearance revealed cuts on her face and also badly swollen lips: I assumed from this that Mrs. Loomis had been beaten by her husband. This "beast from Wall Street" must be done away with, I thought to myself. Don't think I didn't contemplate and try to persuade myself out of the inevitable. I tried, but it was of no use.

After the murder of Mr. Loomis was completed, I felt greatly relieved. I would neither see nor hear of this terrible man any more. The biggest surprise of all to me was that it was so easy, so very easy to murder Mr. Loomis. Who would ever think killing your father was so easy?

TIME

by Sandy Holm

Far beyond the grasp of men, high above the faintest breath of life, in a distant, placid, untouched world, there hovers the Shadow of Time. As the final hours fade, in quiet anticipation. Night awaits her inevitable glory. The creeping Shadow steals through the dimension of time and alters the face of the elements. Day, in all her splendor, bows her head and succumbs to the will of her rival. In quiet beauty she exits and leaves the empty solitude of space. Slithering in phantom fashion, Shadow blankets the earth with a cloak of unerring sleep and mystic dreams.

THE ACCIDENT

by Laura Danielson

As I write this story, I am afraid. I am afraid for you and all other young people like you, afraid that you will become killers as he did. It won't be intentional, but you may still become a killer. It could happen today, tomorrow, next year. But before it does, read this story. Maybe you will think twice before you disobey the black and white sign at the side of the road. He didn't.

It is dark and cold this October night, yet it seems warm and gay and alive with the electrifying glow of youth. As we drive home from the game, everyone is happy and doesn't have a care in the world. Or, at least we don't think we do.

As we hit the long stretch of dark road, laughing and joking, none of us realize how fast the car is going, except him. The speed limit is fifty, but suddenly I realize we are going much faster. For that brief moment, as I glance at the speedometer, it reads eighty. As we near the railroad crossing, I see the flashing lights. They come nearer and nearer at a deadly speed. I push him away and turn the wheel. I'll never forget the horrifying screech of the wheels as we turn and just miss the oncoming train. It all happened so fast.

I am awake now. I can feel the soft dew-covered grass beneath me. As I lie here, I feel something warm running down my face and over my cold, damp cheeks. I try to move, but my body will not respond. I feel a sudden pain. Now, there is nothing. What once was my body, full of life and happiness, now is a mass of numbness and fear. Fear that no one will find me here. I lie here, hoping and praying that someone will come, but there is no one.

I have been here a long time. Surely, someone should have come by now-if they are coming-ever. Wait! Could it be? Yes, someone has found me. He tells me to lie still, that he will get an ambulance.

In a short time I hear them coming. There are three or four of them now, but still I cannot see who they are because it is so dark.

Now I am being lifted into the ambulance. I can hear many people talking and asking questions. It is still very dark.

The trip to the hospital seems long. The intern who is riding next to me has a very gentle voice. He talks to me and tells me not to worry. The pain isn't as bad, now, and I start reliving this horrible night. If only I could have stopped him in time. It's all over now, though, everything's done. This seems like a bad nightmare, but I know I won't wake up and find that everything is all right, because it isn't.

Soon we arrive at the hospital. I feel very warm, and it is still dark. I hear many concerned, worried doctors giving directions. They give me a shot, and soon I become very drowsy. I fall asleep.

I am trembling when I awaken and am hoping that someone is near. I lie and wonder what the days, the weeks, or the months will bring for me. I know I am hurt very seriously, and I wonder if this one night, if this one mistake, will ruin all my hopes and dreams for the future. All I can do is wait.

Soon the doctor arrives and, just like they always do, he asks me how I feel.

He tells me that I have broken my arm and my leg. I have also broken three ribs and suffered a slight concussion. He tells me I am lucky to be alive, and I believe him.

Suddenly, I realize that something is missing. Where are the others? Are they alive? Many questions come to my mind at once, and I have a hard time arranging them so they make sense.

I ask the doctor, and for a brief moment, I am sorry I did. He tells me Ron, the driver is in serious condition with a back injury. He also tells me he is in a coma and has been for four days. The others? They had been killed instantly.

As he leaves, I feel like crying, but I can't. I lie there and recall what he has told me.

"You're lucky," he said. LUCKY! My best friends have been killed and one of them is in a coma and has been for four days. Wait! But, I thought the accident happened yesterday. It has been dark all this time! Why couldn't I see the doctor's face a minute ago? Oh no!

Now, it is all clear to me. It hurts to face the truth sometimes, so much that you try to wipe it from your memory. This time, though, I couldn't help but face the truth because my whole life will be different from now on. All my hopes and dreams for the future have faded into the past. I shall never see the moon or the stars or anything else again. From now on I will live in a world of darkness and fear. No one knows what it will be like from now on. I am blind.

CALL OF NATURE

by SANDY ERDAHL

THE SEA

by SANDY ERDAHL

Cutting through the stillness of the air like an evil monster came the thunderous roar of the restless sea; its mighty waves stretched across the beach and crashed against the rocks, taking back with it, into an unknown destiny, what prey its claws could grasp. Yet, above this roar, ringing through the air could be heard the laughter of a carefree child.

The child played happily on the beach as though without a care in the world. Exploring thoughtfully, thoroughly, the child was overwhelmed by the trinkets of the sea. The child began collecting many of the tempting little treasures the sea brought in, which only a child's heart could love. Soon he came to the waters edge and the sea, as if aware of the child's presence, ceased its mighty roar; the water became as smooth as glass. As the child stepped into the water he looked down and saw something which delighted him. Here before him was another playmate reflecting a smile in his direction.

The sea began a soft murmuring whisper--gently rippling against the child's ankles and he squealed with delight at his new-found friend. Trying to catch his playmate, the child ran farther out, laughing, as carefree as ever, not even noticing the sudden roar that cut through the air like an evil monster. As the child's laughter rang, the sea became restless and the long arms of the waves stretched across the beach, taking back with it, to an unknown destiny, what prey its claws could grasp.

Shhh. . . . quiet now, don't you hear? It's Mother Nature calling-for the cold dead winter is about to end, and Spring is about to enter in.

"Be warm dear sun, do beat your rays
Longer yet, make longer days;
And heat the frozen crust of earth,
To make new life - the earth's rebirth.

Blow now winds and spread around
The seeds of life o'er thawing ground
Now over the country, swiftly blow,
And tell your friends what you doth know.

Now ye clouds, hear me call
Bring forth rain, let it fall
Do no harm, gently now,
Help bring new life, you know how.

Blow swiftly wind, fall gently rain,
Birds sing your songs again and again,
And wake this winter-sleeping land,
To make it glorious, make it grand!

See now, my grass is turning green,
And, so green buds now can be seen.
Up from the ground dear flowers come,
And lift your heads up to the sun.

Unfold dear land, and spread with grace;
Let all the world see thy glorious face
Beauty rare, so hard to find,
Seen by all, even the blind.

Thy beauty oh, so dear to me,
I take thee e'er so tenderly
And spread thy brilliance across the sky
To make the rainbow's colors high.

Spring's glorious beauty stands before thee,
Sky of violet as far as you see
Now world look and see
A rainbow of colors just for thee.

Listen now creatures, rabbit and doe
Hear the trickling of the brook below,
Hear the song of the birds up high,
Beauty so great, it makes one cry.

Quiet. . . . see red and orange of the setting sun
Winged birds softly sing as one.
Yes, now I see my work is done
Hear now Spring has begun."
